The Mystic Krewe of the Seahorse rolls through Bay St. Louis on Monday for its ninth annual Lundi Gras parade, led by Capt. Longbeard (Trip Trapagnier) and Lady Claiborne (Susan Brady Humphrey).

Hancock County celebrated the Carnival season in style over the past several days, with the Krewe of Knights parade in Bay St. Louis on Friday, the Krewe of Kids and Krewe of Diamondhead parades on Saturday, the Mystic Krewe of the Seahorse parade on Lundi Gras and the Krewe of Real People: The Next Generation wrapping up local festivities on Fat Tuesday.

Holy Trinity Catholic School's Krewe of Knights paraded on Second Street, Union Street and Beach Boulevard on Friday, turning back up toward the school beside Our Lady of the Gulf Church. Back at the school, HTC's royals were toasted by the royal court of the Krewe of Nereids.

Master of Ceremonies Tish Williams, executive director of the Hancock Chamber, introduced the royal court. Mayor Mike Favre presented proclamations to the king and queen declaring Friday "Krewe of Knights Day in the Bay."

The Krewe of Kids rolled on Saturday, having been postponed from the previous week due to inclement weather. Grand Marshal Chief Toby Schwartz, King Kole Smith, age 8, and Queen Amelie Grace Cowand, age 6, led the way.

The Krewe of Diamondhead enjoyed picture-perfect weather on Saturday for its 2023 Mardi Gras Parade with the theme of "Around the World," led by King Ali'I Honua the 48th, Hoppy Smith, and Queen Suzy Smith.

King Prescott Williams and Queen Simone Williams lead the way Tuesday for the Krewe of Real People: The Next Generation's annual Mardi Gras Day parade in Bay St. Louis.

"The Diamondhead parade is known for its family friendly atmosphere and this year it did not disappoint," Mayor Nancy Depreo said. "As a child, I remember marching in the Diamondhead parade and now on its 48th year, I enjoyed watching it with my grandchildren. Thank you to the Krewe of Diamondhead for another fabulous parade."

Several other groups participated in the parade, including the Krewe of Olympus, the Krewe du Shoe, the Krewe of Selene, the Krewe of Kamehameha and the Krewe of Tiki.

The Mystic Krewe of the Seahorse continued the Carnival fun on Monday evening with its annual Lundi Gras parade in Old Town Bay St. Louis.

The krewe celebrated its 9th year of the Lundi Gras parade with this year's theme of "Revenge of the Seahorse," chosen by the 2023 Captain Longbeard III, Trip Trepagnier, and Lady Claiborne III, Susan Brady Humphrey.

served as this year's Honorary Grand Marshal; and the late Charles Gray was honored as the krewe's Posthumous Grand Marshal.

The Mystic Krewe of the Seahorse takes its name from the famous USS Seahorse in the Battle of Bay St. Louis during the War of 1812. According to history the USS Seahorse fearlessly sailed into the Bay of St. Louis and single-handedly fought the entire British Armada. Before eventually sinking, the Seahorse was able to disable or sink several British war ships, which delayed the British advance on New Orleans. The delay allowed Andrew Jackson sufficient time to fortify his position and defeat the British at the Battle of New Orleans.

Beginning at 1 p.m. on Fat Tuesday, the Krewe of Real People:

Krewe of Real People Grand Marshal Phalba Holmes, a Bay St. Louis police officer and founder of PH Investments LLC.

The Next Generation hosted its annual Mardi Gras Day parade in downtown Bay St. Louis, led by King Prescott Williams, Queen Simone Williams, and Grand Marshal Phalba Holmes, of the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

Krewe Captain Lonnie Bradley II said this year's theme was "Purple Rain, Purple Reign," and was intended to celebrate the achievements and success of the younger generation.

Prescott and Simone Williams are brother and sister. Their parents are Luella and Throne Williams. Their grandmother is Doris Williams.

Prescott was an all-star athlete and scholar, graduating in the top 10 of his class from Pass Christian High School in 2015. After graduating, he obtained his real estate license and began investing, before enlisting in the U.S. Air Force Reserves and earning his Bachelor of Science in Nursing from University of South Alabama. He has been an intensive care unit nurse and traveled all around the country providing care to patients in need. He also established the Impact our Youth organization, which funds community projects and hosts an annual "Back 2 School" supply give-away.

Simone graduated fifth in her Pass High School class in 2008 and was also a gifted athlete, playing volleyball, basketball and track. She studied at Xavier University of Louisiana on a full academic scholarship, and graduated summa cum laude as a Rousseve scholar. She then went on to attend the University of Mississippi Medical Center on full scholarship, and organized numerous mission trips. She graduated UMMC in 2018 with a Doctorate in medicine, and completed her pediatric residence in 2021. She then moved to Cleveland, MS, to help care for the medically underserved and poverty-stricken. She is the co-founder of the the Giving Moore Foundation, a non-profit which has awarded tens of thousands of dollars in scholarships, community support and mentorship along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Parade Grand Marshal Phalba Holmes is a Bay St. Louis native, and 2001 Bay High grad. She attended the University of Southern Miss, then joined the Air Force Reserve and became an EMT. She began a law enforcement career in 2018, becoming the first black female patrol deputy for the Hancock County Sheriff's Office in 2019. She started PH Investments LLC in 2020 to give back to the community by sharing resources on how to invest with tax sale properties. In 2022, she joined the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

Tuesday's Krewe of Real People parade marked the end of the Mardi Gras parade season in Hancock County.

The countdown is now on for the Waveland Civic Association's annual St. Patrick's Day parade, scheduled for Saturday, March 18.

Olympus dared to brave the elements of Fire and Ice during the Krewe's grand ball held on January 21, 2023. The soiree's dueling theme dazzled partygoers with oversized snowflakes, faux flaming urns, ice chandeliers and endless blue and red décor. King Zeus XV, Wayne Ponthier and Queen Hera XV, JoAnn Ponthier's Fire and Ice dream was beautifully constructed by the creative team of Sandy Noon and Candy Motz. While guests enjoyed cocktails amongst the spectacular decorations, Southern Voice played, setting a festive mood. The evening was designed for elegant and regal pageantry, but Olympus' 2023 Grand Ball added a touch of dramatic flair to tradition!

Master of ceremonies, Eileen O'Brien, kicked off the Krewe's 15th annual Mardi Gras ball. Game of Thrones theme song, "Fire and Ice" ushered Eileen in as she sashayed her way through the crowd into The Club at Diamondhead's Emerald ballroom. Acknowledgments were given to the members of the Krewe of Janus' founding members Bob and Diane Meith, and visiting Diamondhead royalty who were in attendance. Olympus' presented its first Greek Column Award to Doug and Betty Maxwell for their unwavering devotion to the organization over the years. These honored guests and awards were all recognized prior to the 2023 royal court's grand entrance.

The master of ceremonies asked partygoers to watch the large screen in the corner of the room, adding to the anticipation of the court's debut. An audio-video presentation of Fire and Ice with high energy music and visually striking images awed the crowd. A second video followed of a thunderstorm and lighting presenting the God Zeus that played while Eileen gave a monologue about God Zeus, Goddess Hera, Apollo, and Aphrodite.

Three trumpets' blasts, fog filled the back of the room, "If ever I cease to Love" played as King Zeus XV Wayne Ponthier and his Queen Hera XV, JoAnn Ponthier stepped out from the back of the heavily adorned ballroom. King Wayne looked very regal in his all-white tux with tails wearing Olympus' train and collar. Queen JoAnn was gorgeous in her embellished silver sequins gown with plunging neckline, side split and champagne lin-

The Krewe of Diamondhead held its 48th annual Mardi Gras ball with the theme of "007," on February 11, 2023 in the Emerald Ball Room of the Diamondhead Country Club. For the opening of the tableau the National Anthem was sung by Mike McGraw.

The Master of ceremonies, Kirschenbaum, John Kirschenbaum, was introduced to the theme song from "A View To A Kill" by Duran Duran. Once at the podium, Kirschenbaum gave a brief history of the Krewe and welcomed all in attendance.

The visiting royalty were welcomed to the evening festivities; in attendance were Krewe of Selene, Kevin and Sarah Parrington; Krewe of Olympus, Wayne and Joann Ponthier and Krewe of Boaters Ronnie and Elaine La Fontaine.

The officers and directors from the Krewe of Diamondhead were introduced and thanked for their tireless efforts in all business and event functions.

In preparation of the evening's celebration, the Krewe was presented with the Past Kings to the music of "Carnival Time." Returning for the event were 2013 HRH Mickey Hatem, 2019 HRH Ron Rhoades, 2020 HRH Scott McNamee, 2021 HRH Kevin Parrington and 2022 HRH Joe Doyle. Unable to attend the event was 2001 HRH Don Perkins.

Once the Royal Guard was in place the Krewe welcomed Captain Ricky Sheppard, who played the part of M, head of MI6. Sheppard entered to "Quantum of Solace" by Alicia Keys & Jack White.

A celebration of 007 cannot be had without a villain. The role of Nick Nack, from "The Man with The Golden Gun," was Dominic Giarrusso who entered the ballroom to much applause and excitement as he presented the golden gun to Captain Ricky Sheppard.

As everyone was in place, all attention turned to the anticipation of the royal court, who took on different James Bond and Bond girl personas. The first chapter of the 007 tales delve into the world of mystery, intrigue and romance. Sauntering into the ballroom as Bond and Octopussy for the evening were Duke David Cioli-

"Just one more thing"

STAFF COLUMN
BY Cassandra Favre

Recently, I finished watching all 12 seasons of "Murder She Wrote," and I was very sad to see my journey come to an end.

I would look forward to my nightly ritual of "crime solving" with Jessica Fletcher. But, that's the cool thing about streaming services, I can rewatch it whenever I want to.

So, in that same vein, I started watching "Columbo," starring the most adorable and eclectic Peter Falk.

And I love it. The formula works so well. In the beginning of the episode, we know who the killer is, watch the murder unfold, and then follow along with Lt. Columbo as he collects and dissects clues, and then confronts the murderer.

He is always dressed in brown - from the shirt, tie, and raincoat to the well-worn shoes.

In an interview, Falk said that the coat and shoes were from his own personal wardrobe.

He also always has a stubby cigar and sometimes the dog — a Bassett Hound — makes an appearance or two.

Most of the murderers disregard the shabby and humble lieutenant. Admittedly, I get kind of mad when they are so mean to him, but he always one-ups them in the end. The end of the episode with guest star Dick Van Dyke is one of my favorite moments.

I finished up the seasons from the 1970s and have begun the episodes that began 11 years after the show was canceled.

And I must say, I prefer the first go-round of seasons much, much more.

It's hard to explain the difference between the earlier and later seasons. Columbo is still dressed the same, still references Mrs. Columbo and almost always returns to the suspects with "just one more thing," but there is a difference.

It's hard to pick a favorite episode from the 70s era, but I managed to narrow it down to three.

I love "Swan Song" with Johnny Cash, who portrays a singer who murders his wife. Of course, he sings a couple of songs, and the chemistry between Falk and Cash is great.

In "Try and Catch Me," Ruth Gordon plays a mystery writer who murders her niece's husband because she believes he murdered her niece. Gordon is one of the most adorable murderers to guest star on the show. And, at times, the viewer and maybe even Columbo understands her motive, but he takes her in

Hancock History: The Industrial Revolution

HANCOCK HISTORY
BY James Keating M.D.

The American Industrial Revolution (1870-1917) is referred to sometimes as the Second Industrial Revolution, because this transition from creating goods by hand to using machines occurred in England from 1750-1840. Inventions such as the steam engines (railroads), assembly lines in factories, electricity, the cotton gin, the mechanical wheat reaper, electric light bulb, production of fossil fuels (coal, petroleum products), and the internal combustion engine transformed the economy in the United States from agrarian to manufacturing.

Before the Industrial Revolution, energy used in commerce by our citizens was basically generated by wind, water, or muscle (ox, mule, horse, and human). Methods of marshalling capital to produce the new infrastructure of factories, railroads, and highways included capitalism, communism, and fascism. Once funded, the entrepreneurs such as the Dupont Family and their seafood cannery in Bay St. Louis needed the ability to generate economies of scale sending out large quantities of oysters, shrimp, crab, and turtle soup. Small banks like the Hancock Bank and the Merchants Bank popped up all over the heartland in America to manage the capital borrowed and generated in our local and national marketplaces.

The birth of the seafood industry in Hancock County did not happen until the introduction of railroads, the building of an ice factory in New Orleans, and the invention of a tin-plated canning technique for the preservation of food. In the 1880's, Bay St. Louis was a small fishing village of approximately twenty-five hundred people. George Washington Dunbar (1816-1878) was the patriarch of the clan that established the company, G.W. Dunbar and Sons, that built in 1882 a canning factory at the end of present-day Dunbar Avenue in Cedar Point. The Dunbar plant hired women from New Orleans and seasonal Baltimore workers. Factory cottages were built nearby for workers. By 1892 over one half of the citizens of the Bay acquired their livelihood, either directly or indirectly, from the seafood industry and fishing. The Dunbar cannery thrived because of good management, a large labor force, and a large number of privately cultivated oyster reefs. Nevertheless, the Dunbar family had to move all of its operations out of Mississippi to Louisiana to avoid new Louisiana state taxes on seafood canned out of their state. Hence, a replacement plant was built at English Point at the intersection of the L & N Railroad and the East Pearl River just over the borderline between Mississippi and Louisiana to avoid the onerous and burdensome Louisiana tax.

A second cannery in Bay St. Louis was estab-

Civil Rights Pioneer - Ms. Flonzie Brown Wright

Guest Column
By Andrea Dedeaux

Canton, Mississippi's Flonzie Brown Wright presented her story as a true Civil Rights pioneer at the Ohr-O'Keefe Museum in Biloxi on January 19, 2018. A member of the Hancock County NAACP, Mark Isaacs, attended Ms. Wright's presentation and wrote this report.

Ms. Wright recalled her attempts to register to vote as a young African-American woman in Madison County, only to be turned away by a white County Clerk in the early 1960s because she did not 'pass the test'. Ms. Wright faced 'test' questions that had nothing to do with voting rights, such as 'How many soap bubbles are in a bar of soap?' and 'How many jelly beans are in this jar?' The white supremacists who controlled County government at the time used these questions and the payment of a poll tax to keep blacks from registering to vote. Ms. Wright's response to the Clerk who turned her away was 'One day, I'll have your job.' She soon followed through on that promise with fierce but steady determination.

Ms. Wright's experience led to a 1965 complaint from the US Department of Justice led by Attorney General Robert Kennedy that found of the 10,366 adult blacks in Madison County, only 152 had been allowed to register to vote, whereas more than 5000 of the 5622 whites in the County were registered voters. Poll tests, taxes and violent voter intimidation had been the tools used by a white minority to maintain positions of power over a black majority in Madison County, but such tactics did not last when brought to national attention.

Ms. Wright fulfilled her promise to the Clerk in 1968 when she was elected Election Commissioner in Madison County. She continued to fight for voting rights and against active voter intimidation, which did not go away of its own accord. Local elections were still being monitored by out of state lawyers sent by the US Justice Department in 1971.

Ms. Wright also played a pivotal role in the 1966 "Walk Against Fear". When James Meredith was shot in Hernando, MS., just 18 miles south of Memphis, while on his planned 200 mile trek from Memphis to Jackson, blacks organized in numbers to take up the march in support of Meredith's efforts to "bring injustice, discrimination, dehumanization, and all other forms of racism to a screeching halt". Martin Luther King, Jr. had agreed to lead the march.

Ms. Wright recalled how she received a phone call one day while she was actively involved in helping to plan the march from her home in Canton. The caller on the other end of the line was Martin Luther King, Jr., who had already heard that if one wanted to get something done in Madison County, a person had best call Ms. Wright. "Ms. Flonzie, this is Martin King. I am on my way to Canton and was wondering if you could find housing and food for 3000 marchers who are with me?" Ms. Wright had little time to organize all of these arrangements, but delivered on all fronts. Marchers were housed and fed in church gyms by an 'army' of volunteers organized by Ms. Wright. Ms. Wright went on to introduce Dr. King before he spoke on the very steps of the Madison County Courthouse, where she and other blacks had been turned away from registering to vote just a few years before.

The night before the march, Dr. King met with 12 of the march leaders including Ms. Wright, where he talked openly of his expectation of a violent and early death, given the threats he and his family endured on a constant basis, "He challenged us to continue the struggle, when his inner feeling, would become a frightening reality. He challenged each of us to continue our involvement in spite of the difficult days ahead." One cannot hear these words without thinking of Jesus talking similarly with the 12 Apostles at the Last Supper.

These direct quotes come from Ms. Wright's memoir, 'Looking Back to Move Ahead: An Experience of History, A Journey of Hope'. The book is available from Ms. Wright at www.flonziebrownwright.com ($20 total includes sales tax & postage). Ms. Wright's appearance in Biloxi was in cooperation with the Mississippi Humanities Council, where she serves on their Speakers Bureau.

lished in 1904 named the Peerless Oyster Company by Charles H. Yorsch of Baltimore, MD. The plant was located at the site of present-day Bay Waveland Yacht Club. This modern factory had its own electrical plant and fishing fleet. The company paid its women workers as much as $5.00/ day to shuck oysters. Peerless provided its mostly Polish workers with housing in small shacks on Felicity Street. Peerless canned oysters, shrimp, crabs, sweet potatoes, figs, and okra depending on the season. The cannery ceased to exist after being destroyed by the Hurricane of 1947.

The Second American Industrial Revolution fostered the creation of a flourishing seafood industry in Hancock County. The wealth created by the seafood, timber, and turpentine industries of that period provided the foundation of our modern Twentieth Century local economy.

Spirituality and Race Relations

By REV. C. GERALD RICHARDSON, D. MIN

C. Gerald Richardson, D. Min.

It would be hard to imagine a more spiritually relevant subject than that of human race relations. It is America's original sin. We have struggled with it for our entire history. Most people who look like me, and who grew up in the deep south, were steeped in a culture which sought to preserve a mindset of prejudice, white supremacy, and separation of the races. It was taught in the public schools, encouraged in the churches, and codified in law. It was part of the systemic reality in which we grew up.

In my own case, and in that of many others that I know, it was spiritual faith which moved me in a different direction. In the mainstream protestant church in which I grew up, a progressive pastor dared to challenge the status quo. He was an eloquent preacher and popular pastor, and he carefully, and deftly led our congregation to a more moderate place. As a matter of fact, the local pastor who preached the sermon at my ordination was an African American. This was in the late 1960's.

Since that time there have been ups and downs. It cannot be denied that some important progress has been made. It is also true that there have been backward steps which have sometimes taken us to dark places, and which have included some difficult times.

The challenge for those of us in the spiritual community is to keep the faith. The inclusive community of the human family is a bedrock value of Judeo-Christian teaching. Not only are we called to be accepting of all people of all races, but we are also called to seek equality and fairness in every area of life. This includes not only the opening of public facilities and venues to everyone, but it also leads us to be proactive in offering opportunity and welcome to those who have been previously excluded or diminished. In other words, we are called to go the "extra mile" to be sure that people who have been previously marginalized are given opportunities to live as equal partners in the decision making in our culture.

It is disturbing that there are currently moves to censure the racial history of our country. We are a great nation. A major part of that greatness has always been our willingness (sometimes reluctantly) to acknowledge where we have been wrong, bring it out in the open, and work to make it better for the good of the larger community.

One of the great truths of spiritual faith is that we are better when we own our sins, repent of them, and honestly work to achieve a more noble and redemptive path. Rather than create shame, this is a means of hope. Most of us have tried to teach our children that our lives are better when we recognize our past mistakes and seek to rectify them. It would be hard to find a more spiritually fulfilling direction than this. My prayer is that we can embrace this truth as we grapple with the racial tensions of our present time.

Waveland's Ground Zero Museum

SET TO OPEN DISCOVERY ALLEY

SEA COAST ECHO

Waveland's Ground Zero Museum has announced the grand opening for Discovery Alley on Monday, February 27, 2023 from 2:00 - 4:00 p.m.

Discovery Alley features an array of fun and educational experiences that focus on hurricanes, natural disasters and the recovery that follows. One of the highlights of a visit to this first exhibit targeted to children is the hurricane simulator, which demonstrates wind strength of a low-intensity hurricane.

"We are pleased to offer activities for children visiting the museum with their family," said WGZM board president Bernie Cullen. "We have secured a hurricane simulator so all visitors can actually experience the feel of a Category 1 hurricane winds. Discovery Alley has a full wall mural depicting Waveland's beach and water during a storm with a fun twist to it."

The idea of creating Discovery Alley developed as an outgrowth of the Smithsonian exhibition. As visitors toured the exhibits, hosts would engage the children, particularly in the Hurricane room, which drew a great deal of questions.

"What we found out was that there were a lot of questions about what a hurricane is," said Donna Martin, WGZM's board secretary. "So, we thought, we need to do some education for children. We brought this idea to our strategic planning committee. They suggested that it would be good if we had a hurricane simulator."

That suggestion from the strategic planning committee was made in early spring 2022. In the twelve months since, money was raised through grants and private donations, the simulator was purchased, the mural was drawn, and a plan for educational and fun experiences is ready and evolving.

"We knew that there was a need to address for children," said Martin. "We really didn't have anything for children until we started working on Discovery Alley. So,

ing. The Queen's dress was designed by Ienna for Mac Duggal, and her necklace was designed by Designer Heidi Daus. Queen Hera XV, JoAnn's crown sparkled under the ballroom lights with over 800 Swarovski Crystals. The royal couple glided from table to table making their way to the stage. Once seated Queen JoAnn had a motorized peacock follow them up the isle representing the Goddess Hera's pet peacock!

As master of ceremonies said, "We now present Olympus' 2023 Apollo Ken Griffey, and the lovely Aphrodite, Angela Griffey", the room turned to watch Apollo and Aphrodite walk out to the song "Bourbon Street Parade". Apollo XV, Ken Griffey looked smashing in his top hat, and black tux with tails. Aphrodite XV, Angela Griffey looked stunning wearing a red trumpet style gown with lightly jeweled flowered appliques sporting a sweetheart neckline.

This organization is the only carnival krewe in Diamondhead to bestow the title of debutante to a few ladies every season. These accomplished and extraordinary young women were selected to represent Olympus on the night of the Fire and Ice ball. "Thank Heaven for Little Girls", played while Caroline Maillho was escorted by her father, Mr. Brant Maillho, and Avery Clair Matheson was escorted by her father, Dr. Duncan Matheson IV. Both ladies wore lovely white gowns with dainty tiaras, and were presented with Krewe medallions by Debutante Chair, Sharon McDonough. Avery and Caroline were celebrated not only by Olympus guests, but also by their families and peers who attended.

The pageantry continued with the presentation of gifts and traditional toasts. Queen Hera XIV, Eva Amos, presented the royal flowers to Queen Hera XV, Joann Ponthier and Aphrodite XV, Angela Griffey. Apollo XIV, Ronnie Craig presented the royal flag to the King and Queen. Lively toasts were made before, King Wayne and his Queen had their first royal dance to one of their favorite songs, "Through the Eyes of Love" from the movie Ice Castles. Queen JoAnn's light silvery gown gave the essences of frost glittering on ice as King Wayne twirled her around on the dance floor, and the true revelry began as their royal subjects joined them on the dance floor!

Krewe of Olympus would like to pass on special and sincere thanks to the following people. Music man, Doug Maxwell, who graciously provided his time, and all the tableau music for the event. Committee-men Jack Allen, Shane Finely, and Martin Guidry for helping usher royalty and members of the tableau safely to and from the stage. New Orleans Photographer, Craig Macaluso, was superb, and exceeded the groups expectations. The Club at Diamondhead's wonderful staff displayed professionalism and excellent food and hospitality. In addition, the Grand Ball committee and board were thankful to Josette Grace who stepped up on the night of the affair and provided guidance.

Olympus has another fabulous Grand Ball come to an end! The Krewe will continue to have festivities throughout 2023 with its next event March 11th, Greek Spring Soiree. May King Zeus XV, Wayne and Queen Hera XV, JoAnn's reign be glorious. Happy Mardi Gras, and laissez les bons temps rouler!

MEET SCARLETT!

This uniquely beautiful Shar Pei/American Staffordshire Terrier mix is quite the Southern belle, as her name indicates. This Southern lady will have even Rhett Butler tripping all over himself to be in her company. She has a very gentle approach when meeting new friends, and will sniff your hand before giving sweet kisses. Scarlett has obviously been to charm school, as she sits on command and takes treats ever so gently. Her coat is a soft fawn color, and her eyes are the color of translucent amber. Such a pretty girl! Scarlett is friendly with other dogs of a similar demeanor, and may likely need a slower introduction to more active, playful dogs. As Scarlett is easily startled and currently lacking confidence when in unfamiliar situations, we recommend that she join a family with children 12+ years old. This one of a kind, delightful lady, is even more gorgeous in person!

You may make the acquaintance of Miss Scarlett during our visiting hours Mon, Wed-Fri 10am-3:30pm and Tues 1:30pm-3:30pm, or you may call our front desk at 228-466-4516 to schedule an appointment. Please bring your dog(s) and children along for the visit to ensure compatibility.

no and Maid June Curtin. They moved their way through the ballroom to the song "Gold Finger" by Shirley Bassey.

The music faded and all eyes were on the door for the next Bond and Bond Girl. This time the Krewe visited one of the most memorable scenes from any of the 007 movies. Who could ever forget the white bikini from "Dr. No." Taking on Bond and Honey Ryder were Duke Craig Harvey and Maid Lalet Harvey. They sashayed through the crowd to "Under the Mango Tree" by John Barry.

Once on stage the audience was prime for their next 007 and Bond Girl. Flying high after defeating Goldfinger, James Bond and Pussy Galore graced the ballroom to excited applause. Taking on the roles of James Bond and Pussy Galore were Duke Darryl Davis and Maid Judy Davis, who strolled through the room to "Die Another Day" by Madonna.

The next duo portrayed James Bond and Holly Goodhead from the film, "Moonraker". This 007 and his Bond Girl saved all human life before they took their positions as Duke and Maid for the evening. Embracing their roles as James Bond and Holly Goodhead, Duke Randy Rogers and Maid Marci Rogers strolled through the Krewe to "Nobody Does It Better" by Carly Simon.

The Dukes were dressed in traditional black tuxedos with gold vests, while the Maids each wore beautiful gowns of gold. Once the Dukes and Maids took their places on stage, the fanfare sounded to alert the Krewe for the presentation of royalty.

To the traditional music of the Royal March, Her Royal Highness, Queen Suzy Smith, escorted by her father Henry Burkhardt, made her way into the ballroom wearing a beautiful gold and white gown, which was complimented by her gold crown and scepter. The Queen's attendants for the evening were Calli Holmes and Brissa Holmes.

Waiting with great pride, the court, as well as the Krewe, welcomed Ali'I Honua the 48th, Hoppy Smith, to the traditional music, "If I Ever Cease to Love." The King wore traditional white tails, gold crown and carried his scepter.

The King took his place on stage next to his queen and surrounded by his royal court as they prepared to recognize their special guests for the evening.

The King and Queen paid recognition at their thrones to special guests, 2022 HRH Joseph Doyle and his Queen Cheryl Doyle, and Don and Brenda Smith. Each were presented in royal fashion and then took their seats. The King and Queen also recognized special guests in attendance of the evening's festivities. Those recognized were Derrik Fair and Sarah Buchanan, Jimmy and Gena Taylor, Jay and Jackie Coakley, Mike and Melissa Reso, Cheryl Giarrusso, Tom Wood and Deril Greenhaw, Father Paddy Mockler, Dr. Peter Fos, and Dr. Lori Fos, Dennis and Patty Holmes, and Mark Powell.

The Krewe paid respect to the past Queens of Carnival for their reign and continuous service. In attendance were 1996 HRH Alice Burkhardt, 2003 HRH Till Garrison, 2012 HRH Pat Sheehy, 2013 HRH Sandy Hatem, 2015 HRH Josette Grace, 2018 HRH Sarah Garcia, 2019 HRH Dinah Rhoades, 2020 HRH Jamie Morgan, 2021 HRH Sarah Schafer-Parrington and 2022 HRH Cheryl Doyle. Unable to attend the evenings festivities were 2002 HRH Carrie Perkins and 2010 HRH Janie Dropco.

Next up 2021 HRH Sarah Parrington led the nights entertainment which included, explosions, smoke, numerous James Bonds and two golden dancers. The audience was thrilled with the action packed entertainment for the evening.

At the conclusion of the entertainment, Ali'I Honua the 48th offered the traditional toast to the Krewe. They exited the ballroom to "Dr. No Them Song by Monty Norman & John Barry

King Hoppy and Queen Suzy led the evening's dancing to the song "We have all the time in the World," by Louis Armstrong. The royal court and then all past Kings and Queens were asked to join in the first dance.

The Krewe then enjoyed a fantastic Mardi Gras surf and turf dinner, prepared by the Diamondhead Country Club staff. Dancing and merriment continued throughout the evening as the Black Velvet band.

The DJ for the event's tableau was Ron Tallent and the official photographer for the royal court was Penny Majors.

The Krewe of Diamondhead will hold their traditional Mardi Gras parade on February 18. They will wrap up their season with the annual Country Western party on April 15th.

The Krewe will also be planning many events that do not limit themselves to the Mardi Gras season. Events such as dinners, dances and outings of all types will make the Krewe more fun than ever. There has never been a better time to become a member of our Krewe. Memberships to the Krewe will open again in June. Please visit our Facebook page for more information.

By State Representative
Brent Anderson

This was the seventh week of the 2023 Legislative Session. With general bills out of the way, representatives began working on appropriations and revenue bills. The appropriations bills will determine how much money is given to various state agencies.

The House is responsible for looking at the preliminary budgets of about 50 state agencies, including the Departments of Insurance, Transportation, Medicaid, Health, Education and Human Services. These bills represent half of the state's budget; the other half is currently being considered by the Senate and will be sent to the House for consideration at a later point in the session.

Budget bills include reverse repealers, a clause that ensures that a bill cannot become law before going to a conference committee for further revisions. With reverse repealers in place, many appropriations bills were voted on in a block to help speed up the process.

The FY23 budgets for these state agencies are recommended by the Legislative Budget Office. These budgets will not be final until the conference deadline of Saturday, March 25.

The House Ways and Means committee took up a bill on the House floor this week. House Bill 1648 would increase the amount of tax credits that can be allocated under the Mississippi Small Business Investment Company Act. The bill passed by a vote of 112-6.

Several bills from the Local and Private committee were also taken up this week. The bills mostly dealt with extending the repeal dates for tourism taxes in municipalities across the state.

The deadline for original floor action on House appropriations and revenue bills is next Wednesday, Feb. 22. After that, House committees will begin considering general bills which passed through the Senate.

The House welcomed a new member who won a special election in January. Representative Perry Bailey (District 23) was sworn in before the start of session by Speaker Philip Gunn. District 23 was left open in September when former House member Jim Beckett was appointed by Governor Tate Reeves to executive director of Public Utilities Staff. The seat for House District 72 remains vacant at this time.

On Tuesday, the House presented Ambassador Javlon Vakhabov from Uzbekistan with House Resolution 70. The resolution honors the successful 10-year partnership between the Mississippi National Guard and the Republic of Uzbekistan.

The House was also visited by Mississippi Valley State University this week for their annual Green and White Capitol Day. Dr. Jerryl Briggs, Sr., President of MVSU, and SGA President Keyjuan Meeks both gave remarks about the university and its progress.

anyway. In a twist, she asks Columbo the infamous one more question phrase.

Then there's "Forgotten Lady," with Janet Leigh playing an aging starlet who desperately wants to get back into show business.

Throughout the episode, Columbo talks about the fact that something keeps bothering him about this particular case. Leigh murdered her husband because he wouldn't finance her cinematic comeback.

And, in a heart-wrenching twist, Columbo does not take in the real murderer, rather lets her live whatever time she has left to live in freedom and reveals that she might not even remember committing the crime.

In my opinion, it shows that Columbo sees the suspects as human beings. Of course, they did do something very wrong, but responding with hatred and judgement is not always the right way.

I recently watched Falk's "Inside the Actor's Studio" interview and learned some more facts about the talented man. As a toddler, he had cancer in his eye, and had to have it removed, so he wore a glass eye for the rest of his life. He was also an accomplished painter, among other things.

When I looked up more about the actor, I learned about "Peter Falk's Law," which according to the New York Office of Children and Family Services website, requires "court orders that appoint a guardian to oversee the care of an incapacitated person to identify all individuals who are entitled to notice of a person's death, funeral, and burial arrangements."

The legislation was a result of his daughter's allegations that his second wife "obtained conservatorship of him and blocked all contact with other family members at the end of his life."

Near the end of his life, Falk suffered from Alzheimer's, a sad fate for someone so gifted, well, a terrible fate for anyone.

He also had a long friendship with director and writer John Cassavetes. I have seen "Woman Under the Influence" starring Falk and Gena Rowlands and it is definitely a must-see.

One of my most favorite things about Columbo is that he uses his wits, brain, and critical thinking skills to solve crimes, not a gun, not coercion, not by planting evidence, and not by just finding any ole suspect.

Once he has the evidence, he confronts the suspect.

I also love how most of the suspects are affluent people, not the typical suspects that are shoved down our throats in many crime shows and movies.

I mean, because of course, rich and polished people can be just as cunning and murderous as anyone else.

More and more, I find myself diving back into the past of cinematic greatness. It's comforting in this crazy world we live in now. There's no over use of CGI and so much more focus on writing and acting.

So, yes, I'm a big fan of the brilliant Lt. Columbo. I have found myself even thinking and saying "just one more thing." Which may be one of the only habits I pick up from Columbo. I don't think I could ever wear the same old brown shoes every day or chew a stubby cigar.

On the flip side, though, I discovered this quote from Falk that I really, really liked. For context, he encountered a bus of children while shooting a film in rural Ecuador.

"Children ran up to me shouting, 'Columbo!' At first, it gave me great pleasure, but later, I said to myself that those children should have had their own heroes instead of admiring a cop from Los Angeles." — Peter Falk.

The pin's design was created in 1869 by the organization's seven founding women, and the design has changed only a few times – mostly in size -- since then. The pin denotes a oneness with all P.E.O. sisters, who share similar ideas, ideals, achievements, and aspirations. Members of the sisterhood recognize that the pin should be worn with love and dignity and modesty and with a deep sense of responsibility, reflecting the character of P.E.O.The P.E.O. about his journey from young Latvian World War II refugee to renowned artist. The event is scheduled for February 25, 2023. This once in a lifetime event is free and open to the public.

With his family, Ozols arrived in the United States in 1949, settling in Trenton, New Jersey. Ozlos received a BFA from the University of Pennsylvania, attended the historic Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts Studio Program, training under Walter Stuemfig. He then received his MFA from Temple University. In the late 1960's, Ozols came to New Orleans to design an exhibition space at the New Orleans Museum of Art. After meeting and marrying a New Orleans woman, the Crescent City became his new home. Ozols and his late wife, Gwendolyn, opened a studio in New Orleans, while continuing his work in Philadelphia doing commercial art as well as painting designs and murals.

In 1978 the Ozols opened New Orleans Academy of Fine Arts in an airy loft above an Italian restaurant on Magazine Street in uptown New Orleans. For two years all went well for the school and for the Ozols.

Then tragedy struck. Gwendolyn was killed in a shooting accident on April 12, 1980, when a next-door neighbor loaded a pistol and accidentally fired a shot out his second story window. The bullet went through the Ozols' living room window, striking and killing Gwendolyn. "It was a great tragedy in my life and still is," as he recalled those early years. Yet, he continued to paint and devote his time to the academy and three daughters, Saskia, Aija and Charlotte." (Kemp, John)

In 2001 Ozols was interviewed by American Artist Magazine. During the interview, he explained his belief that good paintings start with good drawings. "Drawing is a search, a looking into the wonderful mysteries of creation and it is a vehicle for personal expression. Whatever we have in ourselves comes out in that drawing. It's miraculous. You can't learn how to paint without learning how to draw. It's as simple as that." Ozols describes his painting style as Romantic Realism.

John Anderson, local architect and past-president of The Arts, Hancock County talked specifically about Ozol's mural, Christ in the Oaks. Located in Bay St. Louis's St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church on Necaise Avenue, "Christ in the Oaks is undoubtedly an incredible piece of work by an extremely talented artist," states Anderson, "Beyond that it represents the spiritual rebirth of St. Rose, a predominantly African American congregation. Anderson says his favorite part of the mural is the "wind" through the tree branches that was created using the family names of church members and those who helped make the mural a reality. He goes on to state, "Painted during a time of shared community introspection and action that saw a resurgence of the church as a respected pillar in the Bay St. Louis community, the work has become synonymous with St. Rose and people come from near and far to experience it."

Anderson concluded with, "The power of art couldn't be better represented than through this mural, which is why we are looking forward to celebrating it, Mr. Ozols, and the many others who helped make it a reality." St. Rose and The Arts, Hancock County invite our community, and all who share an interest in the church, the mural, or the arts, to join us on Saturday, February 25 at 11:00 at St. Rose de Lima located at 301 S. Necaise Ave, Bay St Louis, MS 39520.

Tigers advance to Elite Eight

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

The Bay High Tigers (17-14) used a smothering defense and a racing offense to send Newton County packing in the second round of the Class 4A state playoffs 56-33 on Saturday evening and advance to the program's first Elite Eight appearance in 10 years.

The Tigers got an early lead with Mike Bell nailing a three-pointer, but Newton County closed strong to take a 12-10 lead at the end of the first period.

The Tigers outscored Newton County in the second period 13-2 behind Avan Wilson's 6 points and Da'Jontae Lee's 5 points to claim a 23-14 lead at intermission.

Newton County went on an 8-0 run late in the third period to close the gap before Jaylen Antoine's basket halted the run and made the score 29-22.

The fourth period was all Bay High as the Tigers outscored Newton County 25-11 en route to the win. Jaden Clark scored 12 points in the period.

Bay High head coach Kelton Thompson stated, "I am very proud of their discipline, commitment to each other, and poise. We felt we had a solid game plan heading into the game. The only thing that makes a game plan work is the players. They get 100% of the credit with this win. They did everything that was asked of them this evening."

Wilson led the Tigers with 22 points followed by Clark with 14 points and Lee with 8 points. Senior Mike Bell scored 7 points while senior Ashton Lang nailed his first three-pointer in varsity action late in the fourth period.

On Friday evening, the Lady Tigers (19-12) suffered a one possession loss to Quitman on the road in the second round of the state playoffs 27-24. Taniyah Lewis scored 13 points to lead Bay High. The Lady Tigers were up at halftime 14-13.

Thompson commented, "We did not play well. It felt like we were not ready to make that next step. I am very proud of our two seniors - Stevie Cooksey and Andre'onna Orange - who have been dedicated to this program. This is the time of the year that teams need to play well and we just did not do that tonight. This team grew up this year and took lots of steps forward. We get most of the core of our team back next year. If this team is ready to work hard, we could be looking at a pretty good squad next year."

On Tuesday of last week, the Tigers disposed of a pesky McComb team 36-35 in more last second heroics by Da'Jontae Lee.

Bay High got up early 8-3 but McComb rallied to cut the lead to 8-7.

The second period ended with the teams knotted 20-20 heading into intermission.

McComb led 29-26 heading into the final period.

With 3:05 left in regulation, Clark hit a basket to make the score 35-

33 in favor of McComb as they pulled the ball out and held it. With 15 seconds left to play, Clark missed the front end of a 1-and-1 but Bay High forced a turnover getting the ball back on their offensive end of the floor.

Lee's number was called on a multiple play. He stepped beyond the arc on the inbounds, received the ball and drew nothing but net for the win.

Thompson added, "I am very proud of Da'Jontae Lee. With a little encouragement from his mother, he has been at the gym every morning at 6:30 to put in extra time shooting the ball. It did not come easy for him, but he has been here every morning. I am pleased to see it work the right way for him. This time of the season, you take the wins anyway you can get them to move forward. To continue to play, we have to get better and play better."
